The Alaska Parent-Teachers Association (PTA) has received a grant from the Alaska Legislature to conduct a series of dialogues to discuss Alaska's capacity to support its military and military families in Fairbanks, Anchorage, and Kodiak. These dialogue summits will include panel discussions and guest speakers addressing specific concerns with opportunities for the audience to discuss additional issues that affect military families. We will collect "good practices", identify what services are most needed and provide information about services currently available. The findings from all three dialogue summits will be published and distributed to all State PTA's, the Alaska Legislature, Alaska's Federal Delegation, and the National Military Family Association. The results will also be made available on the Alaska PTA website.
